

Both parties tend to be hypocritical
user1

Depends on the issue
user1

but from my experience Republicans are hypocritical in may of their policy beliefs
user1

where Democrats are because of their lack of focus
user1

That is true, but I would choose Republicans more than Democrats on the issue of the value of life.
They want to control a woman's right to choose yet worry about protecting gun owners when massacres occur with the use of an AR15
user2

I wholeheartedly agree
user1

These are the same people who didn't want to be vaccinated or wear masks, yet they don't care about the life of a woman or the victims of rape. I also think they are hypocritical about bailing people out. They helped Wall Street criminals but they don't want people getting food stamps or welfare payments.
user2

There is also the speed that they will push through policies on transgender yet stall on larger issues like gun control
user1

Why can we bail out industries and yet be furious that people want to make a living wage to work? I think that is ridiculous!
user2

Or that there is a complaint that no one wants to work right now due to low wages, yet free market says then we should pay them more for services
user1

Totally true! I still don't believe they will allow gun reform even after Uvalde.
user2

Its a travesty
user1

I would be happy with just a single step towards something
user1

an extra day of waiting
user1

Agreed, anything would be an improvement.
user2

or no gun show exemption
user1

anything
user1

I am more frustrated that we don't try anything and compare
user1

a simple scientific approach
user1

we have data from peer countries of gun buy back programs working well
user1

They say it's a mental health issue but they don't want universal health care. As long as the money is there they won't be serious about changing anything and it's heartbreaking.
user2

Mental Health programs don't pay the hospitals so it doesn't help fun the market
user1

There is a hypocrisy about Mental Health being the cause
user1

I am a teacher and I don't want to carry a gun. If the police didn't want to go in and confront this person what am I going to do? It would have to be so secure in my classroom when would I even get it in an emergency? There's no serious discussion.
user2

My spouse is also a teacher and why would a kindergarten teacher have an assault rifle
user1

The logistics alone of a teacher being armed is nuts
user1

Anything to deflect from the issue.
Did you see the ad with a toddler holding an AR15 that talked about raising a child in the way it should go from the Bible? I am most sick of them pretending they have a monopoly on faith or values!
user2

I am disappointed in the suggestion of all schools getting ex vets to work as guards. Where in the budgets do they do that for some schools in poor communities?
user1

Most teachers I know don't want to be armed. I hope your wife is able to enjoy her summer.
user2

Same for you.
user1

Exactly, the wealthy school districts will have it while poor kids remain vulnerable. They can't find enough police or military people now so where are all of these people coming from and how do they get vetted? Thanks.
user2

Hopefully something will happen and we stop seeing guns as a golden goose and more like an extremely dangerous tool that should be highly regulated or at least regulated like a car at the least.
